Art Unit: 3636

Claims 1-7 are objected to because of the following informalities:

In claim 1, recitation of the "container" and "rigid container", to denote two elements, is confusing. It is suggested that the first "container" be changed to "flexible receptacle", or "flexible pouch", or the like.

Appropriate correction is required.

The following is a quotation of 35 U.S.C. 103(a) which forms the basis for all obviousness rejections set forth in this Office action:

(a) A patent may not be obtained though the invention is not identically disclosed or described as set forth in section 102 of this title, if the differences between the subject matter sought to be patented and the prior art are such that the subject matter as a whole would have been obvious at the time the invention was made to a person having ordinary skill in the art to which said subject matter pertains. Patentability shall not be negated by the manner in which the invention was made.

Claims 1 and 5 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 103(a) as being unpatentable over Ive in view of Colombo et al.

Ive (figs. 2-10) shows structure similar to that claimed, including a flexible pouch 40 which houses a rigid container 60. A seating plate 80 is provided for supporting a child thereon. While the carrier of Ive does not have means for securing to a belt of a person, to have modified the pouch and/or container by providing securing means for a person's belt, in place of the waist strap 20, would have been obvious to one with ordinary skill in the art, as such is shown to be conventional by Colombo et al (fig. 6) thereby saving cost and material.

In regards to claim 5, note upper flap 108.

Art Unit: 3636

Claims 2-4,6 and 7 are objected to as being dependent upon a rejected base claim, but would be allowable if rewritten in independent form including all of the limitations of the base claim and any intervening claims.

The prior art made of record and not relied upon is considered pertinent to applicant's disclosure.

Kataoka, Taniguchi, Yamiguchi et al, Nakayama and Kernkamp show various features of the invention.
